APPENDIX

MEMORANDUM OF UNDERSTANDING BETWEEN THE CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY AND THE DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE
FOR MUTUAL SUPPORT IN CONTINGENCY SITUATIONS
SHORT OF GENERAL WAR (C)
3 November 1966

1. (S) Purpose

The purpose of this memorandum is to set forth basic principles governing the planning and operational relationships between the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) and the Department of Defense (DOD) for the planning and execution of military plans and operations in situations short of general war. It is applicable to contingency plans and operations undertaken at the direction of US national-level authorities.

2. (C) References

The following references pertain to the content of this memorandum:

SECRET5. (S) Planning Guidance

- a. In planning for contingency operations, mutual support will be accomplished through continuing close collaboration between the staffs of CIA and the Joint Chiefs of Staff at the Washington level and between the unified command staffs and CIA elements associated therewith.
- b. There must be an early determination as to the intelligence information needed for planning. Close consultation and collaboration between elements of CIA and DOD at the Washington level and between the unified command staffs and CIA elements associated therewith will determine the availability and adequacy of basic intelligence information (intelligence data base) and determine the requirements for all source intelligence collection and for counterintelligence.
